WHO Embarks on the Creation of a Global Health Facilities Database

The World Health Organization is responding to a crucial global health care need. The need to simply know "Where are your health facilities?"

The WHO announced the creation of a new Global Health Facilities Database (GHFD) that will allow all populations to locate and access information about health care services and facilities on a global scale. This timely and essential repository will

"standardize the master lists of local and regional health facilities into an open database. Doing so will strengthen country's technical capacity at all levels, improve data interoperability across information systems, support the provision of universal health coverage..." etc.

...facilitating communication between the Library and the Faculty, students, staff and community partners of the University of Medicine & Health Sciences (UMHS).

The screenshot displays the UpToDate website interface. At the top, there is a search bar with the text 'Search UpToDate' and a magnifying glass icon. The navigation bar includes 'Contents', 'Calculators', 'Drug Interactions', and 'UpToDate Pathways'. On the right side of the navigation bar, there are buttons for 'Register' and 'Log In'. Below the navigation bar, a 'Topic Outline' sidebar is visible on the left, listing various topics under 'GENERAL MANAGEMENT ISSUES' and 'COVID-19-SPECIFIC THERAPY'. The main content area is titled 'COVID-19: Management in hospitalized adults'. It includes author information (Arthur Y Kim, MD, FIDSA; Rajesh T Gandhi, MD, FIDSA), section editor (Martin S Hirsch, MD), and deputy editor (Allyson Bloom, MD). A 'Contributor Disclosures' link is provided. A note states that all topics are updated as new evidence becomes available and that the peer review process is complete. The literature review current through is 'Dec 2021' and the topic was last updated on 'Jan 24, 2022'. The 'INTRODUCTION' section discusses the importance of coronaviruses and the identification of a novel coronavirus in Wuhan, China, in late 2019. It mentions that the disease is designated COVID-19 and stands for coronavirus disease 2019. The virus that causes COVID-19 is designated severe acute respiratory syndrome coronavirus 2 (SARS-CoV-2). The text states that this topic will discuss the management of COVID-19 in hospitalized adults and that the approach to hospital management evolves rapidly as clinical data emerge. It advises clinicians to consult their own local protocols for management, which may differ from the approach. Interim guidance has been issued by the World Health Organization and, in the United States, by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention [2,3] and the National Institutes of Health COVID-19 Treatment Guidelines Panel [4]. Links to these and other related society guidelines are found elsewhere. The 'Society guideline links' section below provides links to 'COVID-19: Outpatient evaluation and management of acute illness in adults', 'COVID-19: Initial telephone triage of adult outpatients', and 'COVID-19: Anticoagulation in adults with COVID-19'. The 'EVALUATION' section discusses the management of patients with COVID-19 in the home and outpatient setting, as well as respiratory and critical care of patients with COVID-19. It also discusses the epidemiology, clinical features, diagnosis, and prevention of COVID-19.

Abstract

Objective: This study aimed to explore the early functional results of total hip arthroplasty (THA) using the supercapsular percutaneously assisted total hip (SuperPATH) microposterior approach.

Methods: In this retrospective study, 58 patients treated with THA from October 2015 to April 2016 in our hospital were enrolled. A total of 28 patients (11 men and 17 women; mean age: 74.95±7.06 years) were operated on using the SuperPATH approach (group 1), and the remaining 30 patients (12 men and 18 women; mean age: 75.63±7.89 years) were operated on using the conventional posterior approach (group 2). To summarize the early functional results of the SuperPATH approach, we retrospectively analyzed the following demographics, perioperative factors, and measures of joint function: age, sex, preoperative diagnosis, preoperative visual analog scale (VAS) for pain, body mass
